Statewide Facts: Children in Foster Care

In Utah, there are around 2,700 children in foster care at any given time and some 1,300 licensed foster/adoptive families.

Children in foster care often have special needs due to neglect, abuse or separation. Substance abuse is a contributing factor in many foster care cases.

In Utah, most children are in foster care for about 12 months; some children may stay in foster care for much longer. The length of time a child is in foster care varies depending on their family's individual circumstances.

Two-thirds of children who enter foster care return to live with their birth parents or another relative. Foster families have the opportunity to mentor and support parents who are working to have their children returned to them.

Many children are adopted thru foster care. Last year (FY15), 604 children were adopted from foster care in Utah. Most are adopted by their foster parents.

Children in foster care are between the ages of 0-19. The greatest need is for families who are able and willing to care for children over age 8.

Many children enter foster care with brothers and sisters. They need foster families who can help them stay together.

Children in foster care come from all racial and cultural backgrounds. There is a need for families of all races and cultures to come forward. Children do better when placed with families who can help them maintain their cultural and racial identities.

Latino and Hispanic children are over-represented in the foster care system in Utah.

- In Utah, they make up more than one in every five children in foster care (22%).
- Culturally-sensitive placements can help to ease the trauma experienced by children who are removed from their homes and placed in foster care.
- It helps when families who are fluent in both Spanish and English care for Latino/Hispanic children—but it is not required. All foster families must be legal US residents.

In Utah, foster parents may be married or single. They may own or rent their homes. It takes 32 hours of in-class training and the ability to pass a criminal background check to become a foster parent. Utah Foster Care Foundation and Division of Child & Family Services provide ongoing training to foster and adoptive parents throughout the state.

Utah Foster Care is a private, non-profit organization contracted by the Division of Child & Family Services (DCFS) to find, educate, and support foster and adoptive families to care for the children in Utah's foster care system.
